Step 1

You are going to listen to a poem by GiGi Buddie. Before you listen, read the text of the poem below. What do you think the poem is about?

About the author

GiGi Buddie is an American Indian artist. She studies theatre performance and environmental analysis. GiGi was a delegate for the Human Impacts Institute at COP26. There, she curated an exhibition that amplified the voices and stories of Indigenous women and youth from the Global South. Through her songs, poetry, and performing arts pieces, GiGi wants to highlight Indigenous and climate resilience.

Step 2

Listen to the poem on YouTube. Some words are missing from the text. Choose the correct word from the box and fill in the gaps.

clear – sound – wild – rivers – Earth – leaves – world – bones – alone – break

A poem on the climate crisis

I scour the streets wondering where the wild things went.

Like the breeze that wraps itself around the (a) _____ of trees and takes my secrets far away.

Like the snow that softly melts from the tops of mountains and flows into (b) _____ that burst with life.

Like stars that dance in darkness in the quiet untouched land.

The beams of stories of creation and my imagination runs free with the (c) _____ things.

I don't remember when they started to disappear.

Only that I cried when the Big Dipper was no longer (d) _____ in the sky because of smoke that poured from forests crying for help.

If the land is hurt, parts of me (e) _____ and fold under the pressure of losing roots that were meant to last.

Knowledge exists in my (f) _____, placed there by generations of healing hands that cared for the undying lands.

But just like a ship is dubbed unsinkable, these lands are withering.

The (g) _____ of a new built world drowns out the voices screaming from our bones.

But we are not (h) _____. We are legends strong, and warrior hearts that beat in rhythm with each other and the pulse of this (i) _____.

If you listen to the (j) _____, you'll hear us.

And if you just open your eyes.

Step 3

1. Discuss with a partner:
I think this poem sounds ...

2. Underline all the words in the text that have to do with nature.

3. Do you think that art (poetry, literature, music, films) can help fight the climate crisis?
